FIRST CONFERENCE OF THE 'CIB- CULO LITERARIO.'

On Friday evening the splendid saloons of the Literary Club of Buenos Ayres were filled with a select audience of 200 persons, including President Mitre, the Minister of Interior, the Provincial Finance Minister, the Postmaster-General, the Rector of the University, the President of the National College, the Inspector-general of Mines, the Director of the Museum, the editors of the 'Tribuna,' 'Revista,' 'Standard,' 'Progrés,' and 'River Plate Magazine,' the Rev. curates of San Miguel and San Nicolas, Colonels Conesa and Diaz, Drs. Esteves Sagué, Adolfo Al-sina, P. A. Obligado, Cantillo, Mne.
Noronha, Messrs. Leynau Lapiente, Estrada, J. C. Obligado, J. C. Ocampo, Perez del Cerro, Larsen, Carulla, Le-long, Palliere, Professor Puiggari, Captain Mancilla and several other gentlemen known in the literary, political or industrial world.

At half-past eight the hon. sec., Capt.
Mancilla, opened the proceedings by a brief statement of the condition of the 'Circulo' and its funds. There are 165 members, contributing an income of $8,250 mpc per month: the rent is 3000$, and other expenses amount to 3,500$, leaving a surplus more than enough to guarantee financial security.
In accordance with the Rules, the members and friends of the institute were convoked to the first Conference, on the present occasion.

Dr. Juan Maria Gutierrez, the vena-rable Rector of the University, was in the chair, supported on either side by the learned President of the Republic, the members of the Committee, Professor Jacques of the National College, Sig. Puiggari, and the Minister of the Interior.

The Chairman proceeded to deliver the inaugural discourse, and said: Gentlemen—The first conference of the Literary Club is a happy omen, and one which I hail with the most heartfelt pleasure. Under the present auspices Buenos Ayres enjoys the fullest liberty of sentiment and education, and here may assemble men of all ages and pursuits to study every branch of human progress, and by their researches labor for the public weal and communicate their investigations to their fellow-men. I can, in a brief discourse, only give a cursory glance at the vast and varied fields thrown open to the enterprise of your explorations: suffice it to say that you have before a fertile soil only awaiting the seed of your ideas to become prolific and yield a splendid harvest. The literature of this country offers a boundless territory where the pen of the historian, the philosopher, the economist, the legislator and the artist may be converted into a gleaming falchion and gain laurels unequalled by the heroes of bygone ages.

The works of the Literary Club would be incomplete without these periodical conferences, wherein you may freely emit your ideas and conclusions on all or any of the various branches enrolled in its programme.

Take for instance History. The deeds of those men who before and after the independence labored for the greatness of the country, and left their names on the scroll of Fame a guide for future generations. It has been wisely said that the history of the past is the best lesson for the present; and what a field, my friends, does this continent offer, from the time of the early Spanish settlers, when at the close of the 15th century the adventure of one man woke into life this Venus born of the sea-foam, which had slept before in the silence of ages!
How grand the lesson of those valiant pioneers, who converted a world submerged in idolatry into a new empire of Christianity! And how impressive the story of the colonial regime, with its wondrous mechanism! If we turn to later times, we have the glorious struggle for Liberty, which resulted in founding a system the most adapted to human freedom, in a political, commercial and religious sense, under whose hospitable shadow the citizens of the Old World come hither to enjoy the blessings of life and admire the first efforts of progress in the new hemisphere.

The section of philosophical studies is no less ample and inviting. Herein the mind may follow its dictates untrammelled, and without being confined to the tenets of any school of the ancient sages, take from the Old Masters their grandest precepts, and adapt or add to them with reflections proper to the age or the country in which we live. The philosophy of the present day is eminently practical, and as the human mind is every day extending the orbit of its grasp, science lends new benefits to the world at large.

There is among us a body of men eminently respectable for their acquirements, and whose legal pursuits are happily directed to the welfare of society. They have abundant scope for discussion and reform in the laws of this country, which were framed indeed by wise men of the 11th century, but require modification for actual times. We have a Constitution full of flattering promises, but it is our duty to see that these become glorious realities.

Political economy is a science almost unknown among us, for the dissensions of late years left little time to compare the elements at our disposal with the best methods of national aggrandizement. In 1827 the Government of this Republic created a professorship of this all-important study, hitherto neglected in Buenos Ayres. Other countries have made valuable experiments; let us compare their results with our statistics and see in what they should be imitated.

Poetry is a lovely field of flowers where Argentine youth may revel at will and cull the brightest garlands.
Come ye fresh and ardent spirits of the spring-time of life to cheer the last grey hairs of the generation that is passing away—to paint the glories of fatherland in the tropical glow of ardent youth—to cast the warm sunbeams of expanding intellect on the sluggish current of the twilight of age.

Come then, I say to all, and be not abashed at the unripeness of your years, or the newness of your conceptions. Mayhap the fire of genius will direct your pens, and every word you write become a grain of gold to form hereafter the edifice of national literature. Remember one thing—moderation. Learn that you must both study and listen, and that wisdom teaches us to respect the opinions of others. I proclaim the first Literary Conference opened. (Loud and long continued applause.)

The Secretary announced that M.
Jacques would next speak.

He said:—Gentlemen, The idea of a Literary Society found in me a ready supporter, for therein I saw the germs of a fraternity destined to promote learning and social progress. At first our Club was ridiculed by a few who declared its elements incongruous.
What! the genius of Poetry hand in hand with Vulcan, the Muses alongside the fiery Mars, or the winged Mercury taking a polka with Minerva, and stern Egis presiding at the games of Olympus. But these critics did not understand the nature of a Literary Club: they forgot that among the tuneful nine Euterpe had a place, and that a purely literary association would be an assembly of commentators or philosophers occupied in abstruse investigations, talking in syllogisms, fed on sophistical dilemmas, enveloped in clouds of rhetoric, and abandoned to such metaphysical subtleties as the fifth essence.

Literature takes in a wide circuit and embraces whatever is grand, striking or worthy of admiration. The mind may soar into the realms of space and weigh the planets, or direct its attention to the admirable arrangement of the mineral, vegetable and animal world. Nature has given laws more ancient than our race, and by its immutable rules we can judge the difference of metals by their mere external form. So accurate are the calculations of science that we can foretell with the precision of a second the position and revolution of the stars. In the observatory of Paris an astronomer will undertake to place his telescope and draw the thin filament of a spider's web across the disc of the glass on which at a given period one of the celestial bodies will pass over the line, with the exactitude of the 10th part of a second.

There is an interesting work in four emarto volumes written on the habits of silk-worms, describing intimately their manner of life; and more entertaining than any novel or romance.

Again the mechanical world offers great subject for study: for instance the steam engine with all its wondrous appliances now careering at full speed, now managed by the delicate hand of a boy. In fine if we take all that's admirable in the scientific world, we shall find that it includes not only the poetic imagination of the writer, but everything that comes under the French definition of the 'beautiful': "rien n'est beau que le vrai."

After several other suitable illustrations, the gifted speaker concluded his remarks with quotations from Plato, Socrates and other philosophers, and reminded his auditory that the alliance of letters and arts was the best guarantee for the duration of the Literary Club, and one admitted among the first schools of Learning in Greece, where Science, Poetry, and Art were enthroned upon the lofty summits of Olympus (great cheering).

Professor Puiggari next came forward and said: I avail myself of this occasion to say how glad I am that chemical philosophy forms a part in the programme of this Conference. In my late visit to Europe I had the honor to assist at several conferences of Atheneums wherein this study formed a leading part, and the laboring classes crowded to attend the lectures. Nothing is so important as chemistry and mechanism, for in the words of the present Minister of Education in France "engineers and mechanics are the monarchs of the age"—(loud cheers).

President Mitre said: It seems the Committee has, owing to the lateness of the hour, postponed two of the discourses till next Conference: Meantime it is to me a source of pleasure that this night's proceedings have been so successful. Dr. Gutierrez has with a master hand described the chart which is to guide your investigations: Mr.
Jacques, in his own talented manner, has filled and colored the parts remaining in blank, and Professor Puiggari, has added some valuable notes and suggestions.

For my part I shall feel it both an honor and a pleasure to contribute from time to time, as far as my humble capacity permits, respecting the history of our country from the earliest ages.
To-day by chance I had a visit from a gentleman who has devoted his talents to the service of the Republic, an intelligent workman who has charge of the mining works of San Juan, and who, during his leisure hours, has turned to account the profound knowledge and experience which he so eminently possesses to throw some light on the ancient Indian people that once inhabited those countries. Tradition and local evidence show us that the Quichuas extended their empire and superior civilization to the district of San Juan, as the names Tinogosta, Angocara and others testify. In the fastnesses of that wild region are found remains of ancient cities, and in one of these Mr. Rickard casually fell upon some curiosities which I think will be a suitable present to this institution.
(Here a collection of ten flint arrowheads was presented to the company).
They are ten rude stones which to the chance observer seem unimportant, but seen with the eye of science are treasures of antiquity and witnesses evoked from the gloom of ages to speak of the "stone men" who first lived in this continent. These flint arrow-heads are shaped with geometrical precision, and we see that the makers took the precaution to "barb" them so that when they entered the wound they could not be taken out.

Many interesting reliques are still contained in the soil of this country, and I would remind you that in travelling through our plains you should not pass by a rude pebble, for it may be perchance a torch of ancient science, to light up the history of the earliest inhabitants of this country.

His Excellency was loudly applauded, and the Secretary announced the Conference at an end, and that the next would take place on the 15th.
The company dispersed at 10 o'clock.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

Yesterday was a hard day on the Bolsa. The weather was unusually cold, yet the brokers were perspiring.
Everyone was looking for patacous.
Yesterday was one of the hardest Saturdays experienced in Buenos Ayres for some time.

The steamer for Paraguay leaves tomorrow. She takes up a quantity of railway iron which arrived lately from London.

The newspaper from which we extracted the news about Bustamante being badly treated by the Brazilians, appears from what we hear to be a journal utterly unworthy of credit, and Bustamante's circular is all a hoax, at least so parties who know Bustamante affirm. As we do not exchange with this paper we know little of its politics.
We hear that the only circulation which it enjoys is amongst the soldiers of the Government.

The new steamer for the Salteña Co. has arrived in Montevideo. She came out from Glasgow in ballast. We hear that she is the finest steamer in the River Plate. She is 356 tons burthen, and elegantly fitted up.

A prisoner in the carcel named Leon E. Schopinski makes another appeal about the scandalous state of the prison.
The filth of the place, he states, is such that he is dying by inches, and asks to be removed to some other prison. We think that the Government ought to enquire into the matter.

The Spanish Minister arrived yesterday on board the Wadras, a Spanish man-of-war. We believe this is the first Spanish Minister accredited to the River Plate. We salute his Excellency.

The death of Juan Manuel Rosas is contradicted by parties who are connected with the family. Some of the Saintonge passengers heard the rumor in Bordeaux, but, owing to the non-arrival of one of the mail bags, there is no certainty as to the correctness of the rumor.

The rivers were never known to be higher than at present. We hear that even the Riachuelo in Barracas is so high that the lighters of the Southern Railway cannot pass under the bridge. A gentleman, who has recently come down from Corrientes, states that half the Gran Chaco is covered with water, and that the islands which some person recommended for sowing rice are now completely submerged. In Rosario the water is all round the Cas-tom House, and the river is itself rising.

The heirs of the late Thomas Donohue are called on to present themselves and make good their claims.

Four more Brazilian gunboats are expected to arrive in the River Plate from Rio. There seems now no longer any doubt as to the determination of the Brazilian Government to declare war against the Banda Oriental. There is a nervous feeling in town about this Brazilian business. Most people believe that the sequel will be that Flores, Aguirre and friends will all be cleared out of the Oriental territory, to fight elsewhere.

The Provincial Government of Santa Fe has passed a new land law, an extract of which will be found in another column.

We call the attention of our friends in the gas house to the fact that on Friday afternoon, about three o'clock, one of the gas lamps in Calle Artes was lighting. A neighbor extinguished it, but no one seems to know how it became lit.

Mr. Perkins, the former editor of the "Ferro-Carril," in Rosario, has, in company with Mr. Wild, opened a general agency for the purchase and sale of land, etc. We recommend our friends who are land hunting to pay Messrs.
Perkins & Wild a visit.

The new steamer which our friend, Mr. Marshall, is constructing in Bar-racas will be launched on Tuesday next at 2 o'clock sharp. The dimensions of this new steamer are as follows: Length, 83 feet; width, 12 feet 6 inches; two feet four inches draught of water; able to accommodate fifty passengers.

She will have a lady's house on deck, and will be fitted up in superior style.
Her speed will be from nine to ten knots per hour, and is expected to be ready to run about the 1st of November. The engines which have come out expressly from England are on shore, and will be put into her immediately.

The mate of the Spanish vessel Placida committed suicide the other day; it appears that he took too much lau-dum.

Mr. Patrick Pew, a wealthy Irish sheep-farmer who died a few weeks ago, has left ten thousand dollars to the Spanish Hospital and forty thousand to the Convent.

Amongst the list of business to be despatched by Congress during its prolongation, we notice that the claim of the Mauá Bank for payment of over due coupons has been included.

The Municipality, and we believe several other dignitaries, will proceed by first train this morning to Merlo, where there will be a grand ceremony.

Godley's Lady's book for July was given round on Friday by the agent, Mr.
Brill, who continues to receive a number of new subscribers.

The benefit for the Asilo de Mendigos came off last night at Colon, and was largely attended: it will yield a large sum for that deserving institution.

To-day is Rosary Sunday, a festival instituted in commemoration of the defeat of the Turks at Lepanto by Don Juan of Austria, when the galleys of Venice and the Pope destroyed for ever the power of the Crescent. On this day there is a grand procession in Rome, and the captured Ottoman banners are carried in triumph through the streets. The festival here is kept in St. Domingo.

The Argentine Races will come off on the 9th and 16th inst. On to-morrow evening (3rd) from 7 to 8, a meeting will be held at 37, Calle Suipacha, to enter horses.

NEWS FROM THE PROVINCES.

ROSARIO AND THE INTERIOR.

We have the "Ferro-Carril" to the 30th ult. There is an important article on the Sunchales road, formerly used for traffic between Santa Fe and the upper Provinces, but utterly abandoned of late years, although shortening the journey by one half, (three weeks). Congress has voted $50,000, silver, for its restoration, but it seems very much exposed to Indians, and wholly unserviceable for want of fresh water, the Rio Dulce having changed its course in 1823, and now flowing over salt beds, which make it necessary to deviate the present current that the Sunchales road may be available.

The subscriptions for the Protestant Cemetery in Rosario amount to $2,148, leaving a balance of $26 over all expenses: among the subscribers are Consul Hutchinson, Consul Phibbs, Capt. Phibbs, Sir Henry Beecher, and Messrs. Fulton & Steward.

The fish-oil and soap factory of Messrs. Rosquellas is going on well, and produces first class specimens, though only two months at work. On Monday was commenced the work of removing the remains of the departed from the old cemetery to the new one.
Wild hemlock grows so abundantly near the town that travellers are warned to beware of robbers hiding therein.
The River Parana continues rising.
Mr. Wilkinson has retired from partnership in the Grand Central Hotel.
Mr. Perkins now remaining sole owner: this gentleman is not the late editor of the "Ferro-Carril." A masked ball is to be given to-night in the theatre.
The Iron King arrived on Tuesday, towing up two vessels with materials for the Central Railway, and the works are going ahead actively.

Mr. Lafone's saladero at Goya seems to be hard at work: the Hercules towed down five vessels last week, laden with an immense cargo of jerked beef—three of them are for Brazil, and two for England. The owner has put up a press at the saladero capable of pressing 1,500 quintals of beef.

From Rioja we hear that the small-pox had broken out in that province with great fury. When will Argentines enforce vaccination?
In Tucuman the Commercial court has been abolished. On the night of the 8th of September an earthquake was felt, but without bad consequences. A French photographer, reduced to great poverty, committed suicide.

The Chamber has voted funds for paving the streets of the city.

Dates from Cordoba are to Sept.
23rd, but bring no news.

The 'Actualidad' of Salta, 6th Sept represents the Province verging on bankruptcy owing to the late disturbances. A body of night police is in formation. The Chamber was to close on the 6th: the province is tranquil.

Everything goes on well in Jujuy, but slowly.

GUALEGUAYCHU.

The 'Porvenir' dates to the 30th ult.
The Blanco army came up on the rebels under Ventura Rodriguez at the Queguay and completely routed them.
The officers of the Mercedes garrison who fled on the approach of Flores and took refuge at Gualeguaychú published, on the 23rd of September, a manifesto, returning their thanks to the inhabitants for so hospitable a reception, and announcing their departure for Pay-sandu to measure swords again with the rebels. The National Guards are called out for drill on Sunday morning.

SAN NICOLAS.

The 'Eco del Norte,' 29th inst., contains a contradiction by D. Juan B.
Martinez to some statement in the 'Amigo del Pueblo'; these little papers seem to have set the town by the ears, and caused two fierce factions. The editors have unwisely dedicated themselves to party topics instead of industry or real progress.

MONTEVIDEAN CORRESPONDENCE.

Montevideo, Sept. 30th.

The packet left last evening, having a very dark and stormy night.
Señor Calvo, editor of the "Reforma," went as passenger, but he says that the readers of that paper will hear from him occasionally from Europe. On Wednesday the mate of one of the Spanish merchant vessels in port committed suicide, first taking a large quantity of laudanum and then cutting a gash in his throat with a razor: he was brought ashore to the hospital and died there shortly afterwards.
The same day a man threw himself before the wheels of a loaded cart, which passed over him, but not killing him: this occurred in Calle 25 de Mayo, one square from the plaza. A doctor who was passing by rendered what assistance he could. You will find in yesterday's and to-day's papers official accounts of a fight between Gen. Sar's troops and the followers of Don Venancio, near the city, in which he reports about forty killed and as many more wounded and prisoners, and two hundred fat horses.

The report the other day, which was generally believed, of the Brazilian Cabinet disapproving of the mission of Saraiva, seems to have been like many other reports very premature. The affair of the steamer Fairy does not appear to have yet come to a settlement, notwithstanding she is advertised to leave on Monday for the Uruguay ports and Colonia.

The Spanish Minister, Señor Don Carlos Crens, embarked on board the Spanish gunboat Wad-Ras (not Madras), yesterday for Buenos Ayres, accompanied by the commanders of the three vessels of that nation in port.
The Government had a company of soldiers and band of music at the Government House to salute him on his taking leave of the authorities of the Republic. He leaves a large circle of friends here. The beautiful new steamer Rio de la Plata, arrived to-day from Glasgow, touching at Pernambuco and Rio de Janeiro. She is a fine-looking steamer, something after the style of the Mississippi in miniature. She will no longer commence her regular trips, and will be a great accommodation for the public, especially under the favorite command of Don Pedro Flores. A paragraph in one of our city papers states that she is not yet owned by the Salteña Company, as the funds for building her were advanced by the London and River Plate Bank. This may probably be a means of keeping her under the English flag, especially under the present unsettled state of the country.

LATEST FROM THE URUGUAY.

FRAY BENTOS IN A FIX.

The Era arrived from the Uruguay yesterday, bringing our exchanges. The newspapers contain nothing, but from an English gentleman who came down in her we learn the real state of things. Flores is about three leagues north of Paysandu at the head of some four thousand men; the Brazilian gun-boats are everywhere in the river—some of them we are assured are assisting Flores in receiving clothes, &c., for his soldiers.

Paysandu is represented as very strongly defended; Gomez is head man, and swears he will fight as long as there is a bullet left.

Fray Bentos is in a sad state, both Blancos and Colorados having left it; there are no authorities of any description in the town now—the Standard agent is the only official character left. People in Fray Bentos are greatly ashamed of being left alone, and it is generally believed that things cannot go on much longer as they are.

The river Uruguay is still rising, and the charcoal men have all fled for their lives.

The saladeros are doing nothing, all the hides are gone, but any quantity of jerked beef is still on hand.

The sheep-farmers in Entre Rios are all doing well. Urquiza's wool has not been sold yet, but he is willing to sell on contract.

Guaqueyachu is said to be very gay and crowded.

NOTES ON PATAGONIA.

Next morning the chief and his wife having arisen, I unrolled myself out of the warm skins, leaving my fair, though Moreno, partners of the heathier tent still dreaming in their youthful slumbers, perhaps of the bliss to be enjoyed with the youths of their choice, whom, in their vision, they saw returning from "distant hunting grounds, laden with skins to offer to their father for permission to lead them to new homes. Sleep on, young creatures, sleep on, enjoy while you may innocent dreams of confiding love and hope; soon enough, like your civilized sisters, you will awaken to find how false is the nature of man. It is man who wrongs woman, and it is his falseness that tempts woman to wrong him: dream on. Having crawled out of the 'toldo,' I surprised the bystanders by the use I made of water, which by signs they understood I wanted, after which a repast, the same as the last evening's meal, was served. Surrounded by numbers of these wild but respectful men of the desert, we made a hearty breakfast, after which, in 'honor of the stranger,' their war games with the balls (they only use two) and the lasso. A mare was brought out at seventy yards; an Indian threw the bolas, and tied her tail fast to her hind legs, without touching any other part of her body with the lasso. They were very expert at forty yards. I saw a man throw it at another who was running about in a space of twenty yards, and trying to avoid the throw, he was brought up at the first attempt. Each country has its customs and its sports. I have seen in India a horseman at full speed, with the point of his lance, take off a beam from the open hand of a man. We have all seen the sons of our country, at eight hundred yards, beat all Europe with the rifle. Talk of riding out here in South America, we have Arabs in the East, with eyes like the gazelle, and heads that Landseer would like to see; horses that can carry you double the distance (without water or food) of the fabulous rides spoken of out here, on the wooden-headed Roman-nosed beasts of this country. After the games, making a sign for my horse, it was brought to me; before mounting, I gave my host an old silver watch (explaining to him, by the sun, its use, &c.); a proud savage was that chief at the evening council. Thirty horsemen escorted me to the station of the Missionaries, sixteen leagues down the river, where I found the 'tropa' waiting for me. The station consists of a small house, built mostly of the boards of empty gin cases, roofed with felt: the house contains one room, seven feet long by six broad; another twelve feet by six; also a small outhouse, with a ship's galley stove in it, which is the kitchen: it is snugly placed on the border of the river, in a grove of fine old trees. The two Missionaries there are hospitable, intelligent men: one an Englishman, and the other a German; but their stay in Patagonia is utterly useless, they are disgusted with the folly of those who sent them there. One of them has travelled with the tribes for two years, and speaks their language well, but could not make the slightest impression on their minds: he came out some years ago a young man, spell-bound with the rhodomontade of the old women of Exeter Hall; he returns home a wiser man. They have no congregation whatever, therefore there is neither church service nor school: the scanty settled population around is, of course, Roman Catholic. A few Indians, once in a year or two, encamp near the place for a night on their journey to Carmen to barter their skins or steal cattle. Unless by a miracle, how could it be possible to convert one of them. The head-quarters of the 'mission' is at the Falkland Islands, which contain about eight hundred souls, people from Scotland and England, not an Indian on the islands: there is no one there to convert. A schooner yacht, of about 100 tons, is provided for the use of the Missionaries, who in the summer months labour much in passing a pleasant time, enjoying the cool sea breezes on board. They are supposed at home to be suffering much by sea in visiting convert Indian congregations on a stormy coast, congregations which exist only in the mind of the sleek lecturer and his dupes in England and elsewhere. Truly, for the good of whom do these labourers toil: is it for themselves, or whom else? Cant, hypocrisy, I hate you! In the morning we departed for the town, six leagues off. The commerce of Patagonia may be summed up in a few words. Imports: Wine, gin, cigars, and the refuse of the rubbish, in the shape of European goods, which will not go down even in the Buenos Ayrean market. Exports: A little coarse wool, some hides, stolen skins, and ostrich feathers (when I say stolen, I mean skins purchased from a savage purposely made tipsy), much good salt, some five thousand fanegas of wheat, a few bags of walnuts, paving stones for this city, empty demijohns, with now and then a plausible individual, who has a vein of gold under his thumb, and who is on his way to Buenos Ayres to see what simpletons may be picked up, also a few people who have managed to escape from such a horrid place. We returned on board Miss Nancy Riley, who played us her usual rolling tricks, during a stormy passage back to Buenos Ayres, where we arrived all safe. Adieu, Messrs. Editors, I am going home. The friendship of the last eighteen months will be ever present in my mind, parting as we do—

"But if for ever, with 'Erin's' best wishes 'fare you well.'" Yours, "ERIN."

Things passed off better on 'Change to-day than was at first expected. We are happy to say that notwithstanding the enormous vencimientos for the end of the month, every one paid up. Money, both paper and gold, is very tight, and there is an uneasy feeling in the market, but the Provincial Bank is acting liberally, and if no more specie is taken off the market, we think that all will pass off well. Paper money is going out in large sums to the camp. This money cannot find its way back for a couple of months. Collections in the city were miserable, and merchants complain greatly about the shopkeepers not paying up.

It was said on 'Change that more specie was going down this evening to Montevideo, but we believe this to be incorrect, and every way improbable. A sale of gas shares was made to-day at fifty per cent. premium. This looks a high figure but shareholders assure us that when the depreciation of the paper money is taken into account the value of the shares is the same to-day as when first issued.

The creditors of Civallieri are notified that a meeting will be held to wind up the estate on the 7th inst.

The estate of Thomas Harkness will also be wound up on the 7th inst.

SAVINGS BANK.

BANK MAUÁ AND CO.

No. 103 Calle de Cangallo,

BUENOS AYRES.

The immense advantages of Accounts Current are now so generally felt and appreciated in the two great emporiums of the River Plate, Montevideo and Buenos Ayres, that there are very few Merchants who fail to keep one at the bank in which they place the most confidence. The Bank of Mauá and Co. in Montevideo has already provided for the working classes in that city a safe and profitable depository for their savings.

The sums deposited in that most important institution are daily increasing, and already reach a very large amount.

These advantages have not hitherto been enjoyed in this city by an immense number of clerks, artisans, working men, and servants of all classes and conditions, who are equally interested in putting their savings out at interest, thus providing themselves with a reserve fund in case of need, sickness, or old age, instead of spending them in the immoral gambling, in lottery, and other frivolities.

The Bank of Mauá and Co. of this city, following the noble example of their firm in Montevideo, now offer the same facilities in this city, and will open a Savings Bank at No. 103 Calle Cangallo, from Nine a.m. till Three p.m. on Week Days, and on Sundays and Holidays from Ten a.m. to Twelve m., for the reception of the savings of the classes already mentioned.

The Bank will deliver to each depositor a pass book, in which will be entered the amount deposited and withdrawn.

The depositor is permitted at any time to withdraw the whole or part of the sum deposited; in the former case the interest will be calculated up to date.

The Bank of Mauá and Co. is sufficiently known to the Public by the benefit derived from the course of its operations, which are regulated on the strictest and soundest principles, and always directed to promote the general welfare.

The Bank of Mauá and Co. are also persuaded that this new branch of their business will render immense service to the working classes of Buenos Ayres and its neighbourhood.

Buenos Ayres, September 19, 1863. P. p. Mauá and Co. WILLIAM LESLIE CONDITIONS.

First—The Bank receives at interest any sum from Twenty-five Dollars currency Silver Dollar upwards.

Second—The interest allowed is six per cent. (6 p c) per annum, which is liquidated every six months.

Third—The depositors can at any time retire the whole or part of the money deposited.

Fourth—Once the money deposited exceeds twenty-five thousand dollars currency, or one thousand dollars silver, the depositor, if he wishes, can open an account current, according to the rules established by the Bank.

Fifth—In case the depositor loses his pass book, it can be replaced by another on paying twelve dollars currency, and advertising the loss in the public newspapers.

COOL BROKERS.

F. DONOVAN begs to announce to his Friends and the Public that he will commence this year the business of a Wool Broker in this City. He is connected with Brokers established for the last three years, and for whose respectability, integrity, and capabilities, numerous letters which he holds from different Estancieros in the camp, whose wool they sell, are a sufficient guarantee.

It is unnecessary for him to state here that his primary object will be, for his own credit, to get the very highest prices possible to obtain for the wool and other products consigned to his address, and next to give entire satisfaction in the delivery and payment of the goods.

In order to inspire perfect confidence in his house, he is prepared, when the wool is sold, (to the entire satisfaction of the owner), to advance 75 per cent., and when the amount does not reach $50,000 m/c., to pay the whole on the spot, so that the owner can at once return to his home.

When the markets are weak here, and we come to the conclusion that it would be more advantageous for the owner to deposit his wool, we shall advise to do so, and in order that he may not be inconvenienced for money, we shall advance him any that he may require, at Bank Interest only.

The House will be conducted under the name of

F. DONOVAN & CO.
